

Meet the First Gary Gibson Award Winner at St. Paul's Hospital/UBC

Written by secretary

Monday, 13 February 2012 17:51 - Last Updated Tuesday, 26 November 2013 16:53

Dr. Christina Romulus has been selected to receive the Gary Gibson Award in recognition of her research and contribution in support of LGBT-related health issues

Dr Christina Romulus is a family physician working in downtown Vancouver and a Clinical Instructor at the University of British Columbia. She is a recent Family Medicine residency graduate from the St. Paul's program at UBC. She completed medical school at the University of Laval in Quebec City and previously completed her physiotherapy degree at the University of Ottawa.

Meet the First Gary Gibson Award Winner at St. Paul's Hospital/UBC

Written by secretary

Monday, 13 February 2012 17:51 - Last Updated Tuesday, 26 November 2013 16:53

During residency, Dr Romulus devoted her research time to LGBT health, focusing mainly on domestic violence within this population.

She also had the opportunity to present her work at the North American Primary Care Research Group last November in Banff, Alberta.

She has contributed greatly to increasing the awareness of domestic violence in same-sex relationships in the medical community in British Columbia and still plays an active role in leading the way in innovative health services directed towards the LGTB population.